ABOUT KATHARINE MCPHEE

Katharine McPhee possesses a voice for the ages. Audiences first fell under McPhee’s spell during a storied run on “American Idol” Season 5 in 2006. Propelled by the smash “Over It,” her 2007 self-titled debut bowed at #2 on the Billboard Top 200 and achieved an RIAA gold certification. 2010 saw her return with not one, but two records —

“Unbroken” and “Christmas is the Time To Say I Love You.” Simultaneously, she became a force on the big and small screens. McPhee co-starred alongside Debra Messing on “Smash” from executive producer Steven Spielberg as well as guest appearances on “CSI: NY,” “Community,” “Family Guy” and more. Meanwhile, she starred in various films. A sought-after performer, she has taken stage for PBS specials, including her own special, “Soundstage: Katharine McPhee,” and “Foster and Friends.” In 2017, McPhee reimagined and reinvigorated a host of timeless jazz standards on her fifth full-length, “I Fall in Love Too Easily.” She has recently wrapped her starring role in the CBS drama “Scorpion” and starred on Broadway and London’s West End in the hit musical “Waitress” to much fan praise.
